

Glasgow-based artist Ellie Harrison works in-and-out of artworld contexts to investigate, expose and challenge the absurd consequences of our capitalist system, and the impact free-market forces are having on our society and individual day-to-day lives.

Her work takes a variety of forms including: installations, lectures, performances, live broadcasts and political campaigns.

Anti-Capitalist Aerobics (2013) performance view online >

Created as a disruption during a conference exploring 'art and climate change', Anti-Capitalist Aerobics engages delegates in an energy intensive workout in order to expose some of the fundamental contradictions in the way we live our lives.

The Other Forecast (2013)

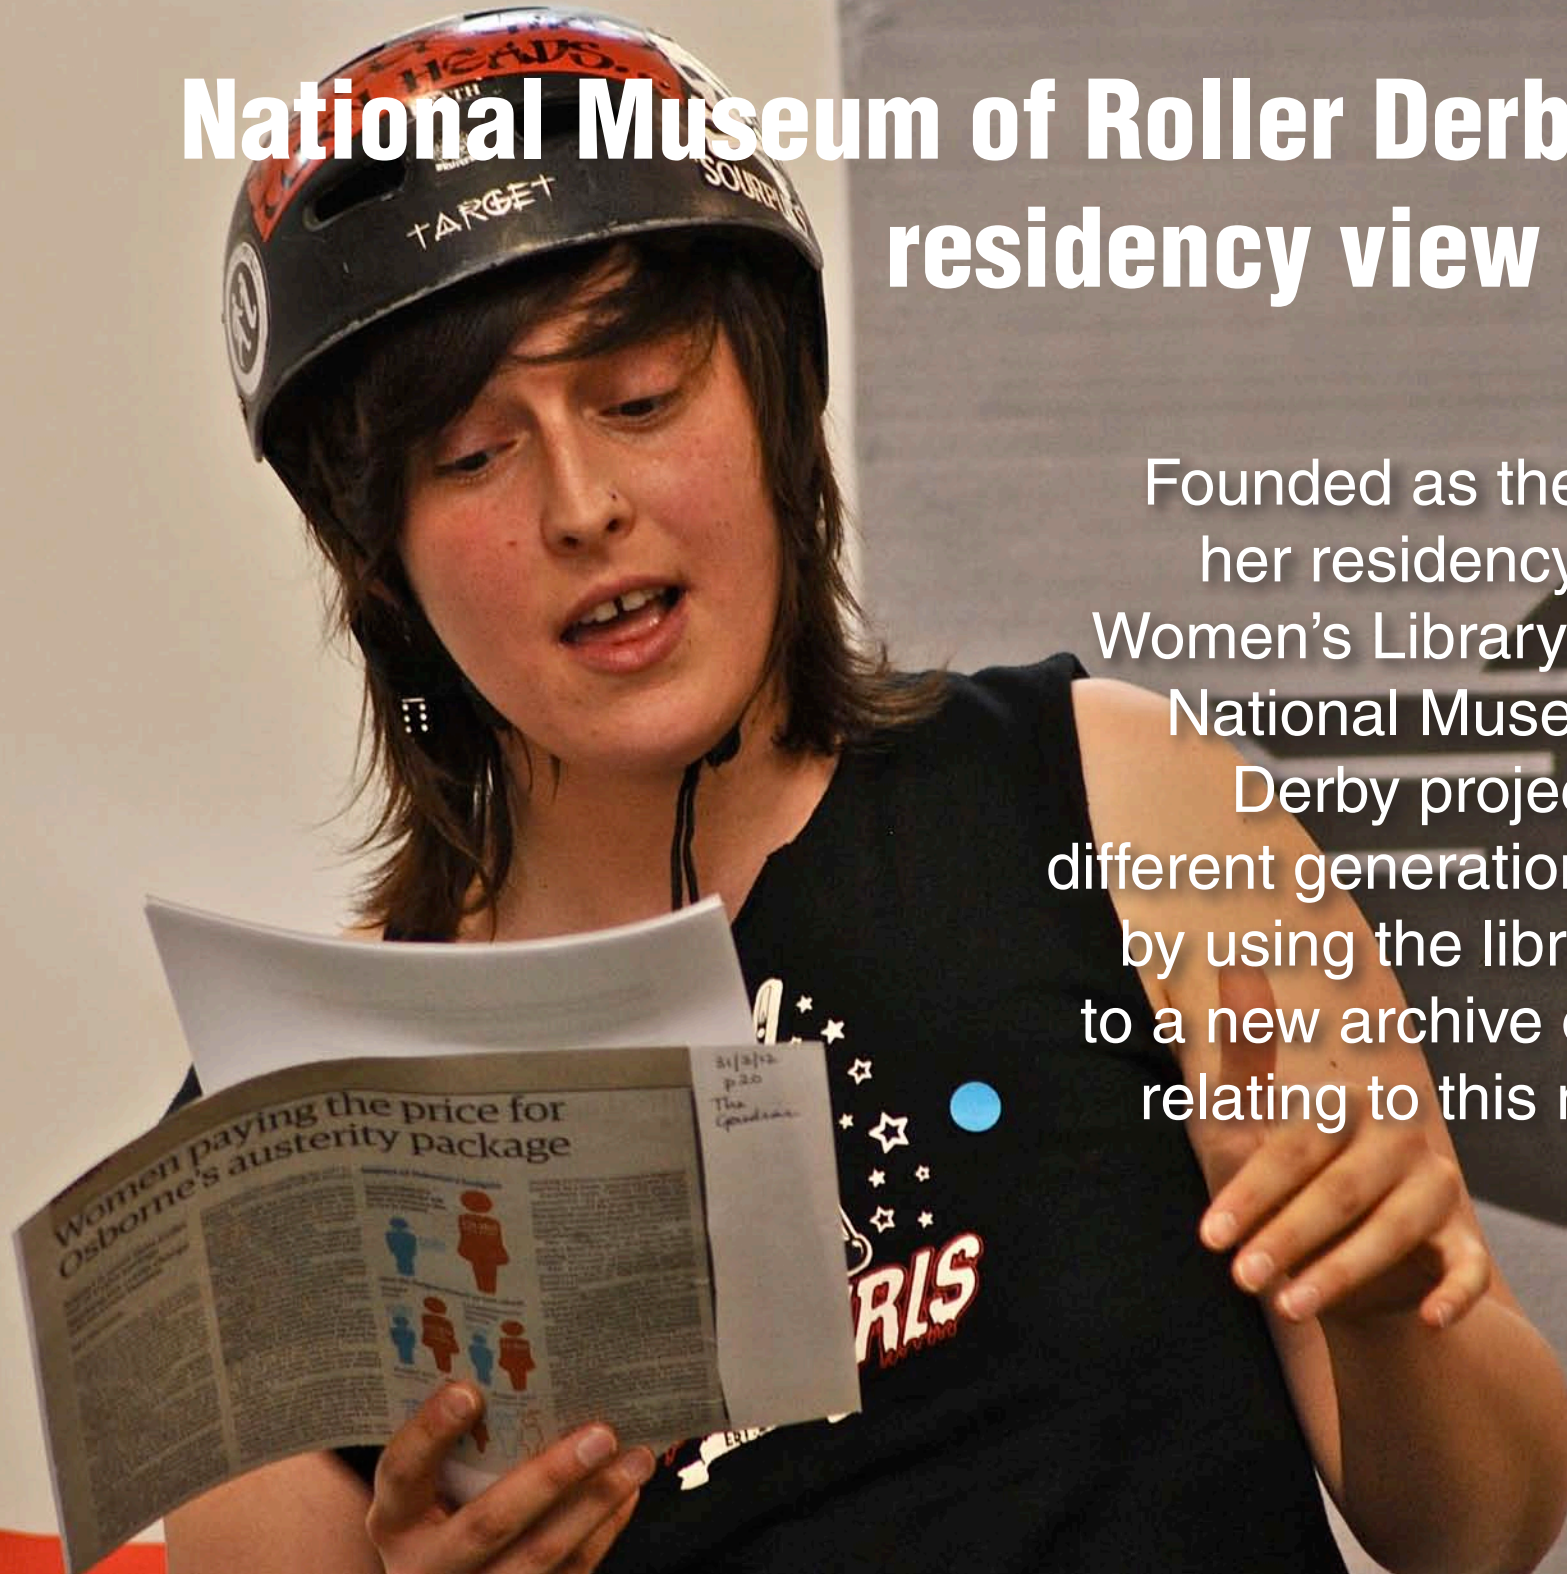

film view online >

Recorded live as part of The Other Forecast project by Ellie Harrison & John O'Shea, this film offers her summary of the key consequences of capitalism, as a warning about the future we are heading towards if the system continues unchecked.

National Museum of Roller Derby (2012) residency view online >

Founded as the outcome of her residency at Glasgow Women's Library in 2012, the National Museum of Roller Derby project aims unite different generations of women by using the library as home to a new archive of ephemera relating to this radical sport.

The Redistribution of Wealth (2012) installation view online >

Created specially for Late at Tate Britain, this interactive installation uses three small dance floors representing 1986 England, Scotland and Wales, to display a lightshow visualising the history of UK government spending on the arts from 1940 - 2012.

sky NEWS
FTSE 5855.00

Bring Back British Rail (2012)

tv interview view online >

In 2009, Ellie Harrison founded Bring Back British Rail to campaign for the re-nationalisation of the UK's failing railway network. She continues to run the campaign today acting as its spokesperson on national TV and radio.

RAIL FARES

BRING BACK BRITISH RAIL CAMPAIGN
ELLIE HARRISON

13:12 ER END OF IRAN EARTHQUAKE RECOVERY MISSION

BREAKING N